Psychological and Social Counseling Department

Support Services for Mother Students

Mentoring scheme for female students

The Deanship of Students' Affairs has established a new department with the objective of supporting female students studying at the Applied Science Private University. The department provides the following services and mentorships:

1. Counselling for new mothers – Providing support with regards to time management and handling of different responsibilities simultaneously.
2. Personal assistance for pregnant female students while conducting different transactions at the university campus.
3. Provide guidance and assistantship in relation to completing their studies and assignments within the timeline specified.
4. Medical health counselling regarding issues related to female students' health and wellbeing
5. Physical activity mentoring to help in maintaining the wellbeing and physical activity of female students
6. Coordinate with the relevant academic departments to offer flexibility in the assessment procedures and components to accommodate the needs of female students with special needs and circumstances.